LIFE SETTLEMENT DECISION GUIDE

Peace of Mind for You & Your Loved Ones

Getting older should mean spending more time with your children and grandchildren, reminiscing about a life well-lived, and making new memories together.

But the rising costs of healthcare and assisted living are creating concerns for many families.

Instead of spending your days laughing and enjoying life, you're forced to make difficult decisions that could affect the financial well being of your family for generations.

- >> Should you take out loans to cover your medical expenses?
- >> Or stop paying life insurance premiums, so you can use that money toward assisted living costs?

Before you take any action, it's important to be informed about your options. Otherwise, you risk losing valuable assets that could be the answer to your biggest problems.

DID YOU KNOW?

Many life insurance policies can be sold in a regulated secondary market — called the life settlement industry — with payouts to policyholders worth tens of thousands to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Case Study: How John Secured $415,000 for His Mother's Care

When John contacted his financial advisor, he was in a difficult position. His 92-year-old widowed mother had resided for many years in a lovely community in Florida, but they recently decided that she would have to move to a nursing home in order to receive the care she needed.

John and his children lived in New York, and worried that they would not be able to pay for her to move to a nearby assisted living facility in order to be close to family.

In addition to the costs of the move and long-term care expenses, John's family also faced rising premiums on their mother's $3,000,000 life insurance policy, which was owned by the family trust.

Shortly thereafter, Welcome Funds was able to secure $415,000 for the family (versus the $0 they would have received by letting the policy lapse due to non-payment of the premium due).

They were considering letting the policy lapse completely, but John's advisor knew there was another option. He contacted Welcome Funds, who reviewed the policy and determined that it could have a significant fair market value in the life settlement market.

Using the proceeds of the sale, John was able to move his mother into a New York nursing home, and had funds remaining to ensure that her long-term care was paid in the future.

“An estimated 90% of all life insurance policies issued lapse before paying a claim.”

Frequently Asked Questions

What exactly is a life settlement?

A life settlement is a regulated financial transaction that enables qualified life insurance policy owners to receive a portion of their future life insurance benefits by selling it to a state licensed financial institution.

The sale of a life insurance policy is similar to the sale of a home or car – all rights, title and ownership interest are legally transferred from the seller to the buyer. The buyer assumes responsibility for future premium payments and receives the policy benefits at maturity.

Who is eligible for a life settlement?

Eligibility requirements for a life settlement are based on two criteria:

Insured's Age & Health Requirements:

- Insured must be over the age of 65 (individuals with health impairments are more likely to qualify).
- Younger Insureds must be diagnosed with a severe or end stage health conditions.

Life Insurance Policy Requirements:

- Policy must have a minimum face value of $100,000.
- Any type of policy can qualify for a settlement such as universal life, variable life, whole life, convertible term life, or even group life. Some policies may have restrictions that do not allow for a settlement, which can only be determined during the application stage.

Are the proceeds taxable? And, will they affect my eligibility for federal assistance?

The proceeds of the sale of your policy may be taxable under federal income tax and/or state franchise and income tax laws. The sale may also affect your right to receive Medicaid or other government benefits or entitlements. Settlement proceeds could also be subject to the claims of creditors.

Before you reach a decision, be sure to review a complete list of important considerations, which can be found in our application or on our website. Welcome Funds is not a tax advisor and strongly recommends that policy owners seek professional tax advice prior to accepting any life settlement offers.

Are life settlements regulated?

Yes, our highly regulated marketplace requires life settlement brokers and providers (buyers) to be licensed on a state-by-state basis. Consumer protections have been passed in more than 45 states and are typically regulated by the State's Department or Division of Insurance.

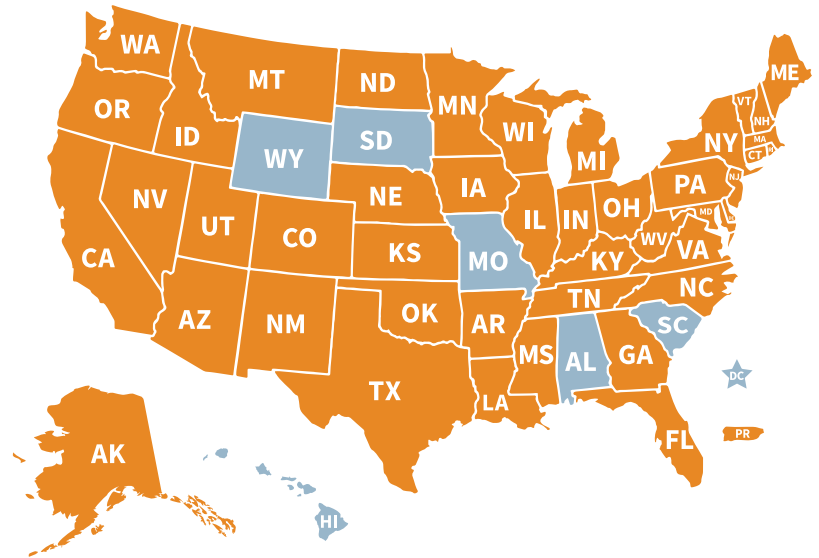

Who buys life insurance policies in the secondary market?

Companies that purchase life insurance policies in the secondary market are called life settlement providers. These companies must be licensed by the Department or Divisions of Insurance in your home state. Non-licensed investors may not have the proper consumer privacy and confidentiality protections in place.

Providers represent institutional investors such as investment banks, multi-national banks, international corporations, pension funds, hedge funds, private funds and other major financial institutions—including life insurance companies and reinsurers—who are investing in life insurance policies through life settlement funds.

How does a life insurance policy have a fair market value?

Typically, life insurance policies were issued when the insured was in good health. As years go by, many people have a change in health, and in some cases, serious health conditions may develop. This change in health may create hidden equity in the policy that can be monetized through a life settlement.

- STATE LICENSING REQUIRED
- NO SPECIFIC SETTLEMENT REGULATION
